

and the planetarian journal - which i think is a good set from which to analyze local currency/currents & also to establish borders of a sort - i think it possible to chart out clean paths through the maze of crap we know as industry, and that to do so is also important simply from the point of view of survival, as well as the kind of intellectual puzzle it seems to be -- i hope works of many folks can spin a sort of web towards the context of which we speak, kind of like a compendium of "plant" life in the industrial state/a reverse on the great herbals of antiquity/ and maybe this is sort of a pretension, or whatever, but i don't think so, & if the cabal, or anyone for that matter, is to eat, someones gotta know these things/huh?

DAVID EMPFIELD

