

Something is happening along the Hudson. Individuals, families and communities are rediscovering native and traditional life styles unique to the Hudson Estuary. At the same time, they are working toward a low energy future. By weaving together local heritage and long term sustainability, reinhabitants are shaping a new identity for themselves: A human culture that acts to preserve the health of the wider life community; felt personal responsibility as the keeper of this culture. Earthscore has produced this bundle of essays, drawings, maps, and poetry to nurture this new way.

In the near future, Earthscore will begin work on another publication. This effort will be directed at defining what the specifics are for the watershed politics of the estuary and describing what adaptive tactics would aid in the restoration and maintenance of this Bioregional Community.

If this bundle and project spark your interest, please fill-out the enclosed card. We are compiling a list of individuals and organizations to create a network that would keep people in touch with each other and the estuary. We'd like to include you.

George Tukel

Please mail all correspondence to:

P.O. Box 1110
New Paltz, New York 12561

A deep felt thanks to the sponsoring group and Merle Bogner for their support.

A special debt of gratitude to Joshua Mailman for his understanding and help.